PRICE THREE CENTS

Made in the Golden Sunlight

It is conceded by the highest authorities that the soda cracker contains the life-giving elements of wheat in the best proportions.

This being so, then Uneeda Biscuit must at once take first place as the food of the world—a soda cracker, but such a soda cracker! Made by exact science in sunny bakeries so light, bright and clean, that they are a revelation. The flour is tested; the purity of the water is absolutely assured; the very air is filtered,—why even the temperature and moisture of the atmosphere is accurately regulated. The sponge is kneaded by polished paddles, not by hand. Indeed, Uneeda Biscuit are only touched once, and then by a pretty girl, from the time the flour leaves the bag until the beautiful package is placed on your table.

You ask why all this work, all this care in the making of a soda cracker? Because the soda cracker is the best of all food and Uneeda Biscuit is the most wonderful of all soda crackers. And with all of it the price is only 5¢ a package.

NEW YORK FASHIONS

The absence of pronounced changes in the general style of Fall and Winter suits and outer garments, is welcome intelligence to the economically inclined. Last Winter's plaid skirt holds good for ordinary occasions, and the long redingote is still the long redingote. The newest skirts however are circular, and much wider around the lower edge, the extreme measuring six yards. The Eton loses nothing in popularity, and for imperfect figures, is of inestimable value. The medium-length jacket is even more potent than the Eton, in concealing defects, but is not so stylish as the short or long garment. An additional under covering, such as a quilted jacket or wool sweater, renders any of these three styles sufficiently warm for winter use, with the addition of a fur boa.

The Long Redingote is shown with or without velvet collar and cuffs, and of course manufacturers are happy, as here, the skill of the amateur dressmaker is set at defiance. The Eton comes within the sphere of domestic ingenuity, and with the aid of white broadcloth trimmings, edged with fancy braid and tiny buttons, artistic results are often attained. Then too, the Eton admits of many changes in regard to the blouse or chemise. The "three-piece" is in high esteem just now; a puffed skirt, a fancy waist, and short jacket, all matching in color tone, and it is supposed that by using a very heavy lining, and a wool sweater beneath the waist, that the fancy jacket will be warm enough for winter use.

Other Wool Dress Goods
seem insignificant when compared with broadcloth, to which fashions has accorded the first position, due certainly from its beauty of finish and wonderful variety of coloring. The window display, made by Lord & Taylor for a week, has scarcely, if ever been equaled in this city. One window was devoted to the purple shades, from the darkest plum to the palest heliotrope. The next window included all the green shades, the next the browns, in succession the greys, the wine shades, then the white and pastel shades, with an intermixture of crushed strawberry hues, and various blue, tints by way of contrast.

Although Secondary to Broadcloth mixed wools and plaids command a considerable share of attention, a large proportion of the latter fabric being in effective combinations of gay colors. In silks, all soft varieties are stylish, and moires are in special favor, coming in exquisite shades of all the poplar greens, reds, blues and plums, as well as in pale colors for evening wear. The chameleon silks, showing three tones over which are satin coin dots or small designs, are really beautiful.

THE FARM, GARDEN AND DAIRY

Little Paragraphs That Will Interest Every Member of the Household

Defeat is the wise farmer's teacher. White paint makes a house look larger. One man's fault is another man's lesson.

'Twill pay to line corn cribs with wire netting. No crib is large enough to hold some of the corn-husking stories.

It's a good thing to know ideas; and it's a good idea to know things. Get all the tools and implements under cover. Grease metal parts.

Plant memorial trees on the birthdays and your children will always have a monument.

Many of the automobilists toot their horns as though it were a notice to the farmer to get off the earth.

Too much shade close around a house is even worse than not enough. Endeavor to "strike a happy medium."

The farmer who never goes to town without having something to sell, will not be likely ever to go to the bank empty handed.

A clever Missouri farmer has equipped his farm wagon with a gasoline motor, and claims that it "runs to town in first-rate style."

The people of the United States consume nearly 100 pounds of sugar apiece annually. It would seem that more folks' tempers ought to match.

An estate of 10,000 acres bordering on the Delaware river is solely utilized for the study of live birds. It is thoroughly equipped as a bird observatory.

This is the last time you will travel along this earthly road. Therefore keep cheery and help the world to keep so, too. We all have been furnished a cup with which to give some one a drink. Use it.

After fifty years of experimenting, David Maggart, of Indiana, has produced a topless potato, says the New England Farmer. Many a farmer has succeeded in producing topless tops in one season—and not half try.

In most states a man must pass an examination to be entitled to run a stationary engine; but any fool that can get a piece of wood to be competent to run an automobile. Isn't it about time we began looking into the qualifications of the men who rush about our roads with these mankillers?

The farmer's wood-lot is an important part of the farm,—and becoming more important every year. Better send to the United States Department of Agriculture, Washington, D. C., and ask for free Farmers' Bulletin Nos. 67 and 173. The first is entitled, "Forestry for Farmers"; the second, "A Primer of Forestry."

The a, b, c, of landscape gardening is: (a) Keep the lawn centers open; (b) Plants in masses; (c) Avoid straight lines. Remove the rickety fences; tear down the dilapidated buildings and sheds; send the tin cans, broken boxes, and cinder piles the way of all useless things; clear the yards; in the place of the aforesaid rubbish, grow things. This idea means taste at home as well as at school; neat lawns, whether the premises be large or small; clean roads, clean streets, clean alleys; the abatement of nuisances; the elevation of farm as well as city life; the cultivation of interest in the moral, intellectual and physical welfare of the community; and creation of enthusiasm and love for the beautiful and the good.

The Department of Agriculture seems a veritable hospital for salary grabbers, all of whom about the position of laborers or doorkeepers immediately become "professors," at least so they are termed by their colleagues in office, all of which tends to magnify their offices and increase their salaries. They all tickle each other's backs. Just notice in his own publications the list of "professors" employed each in a separate office and each having a staff of clerks: Pomologists, agronomists, cerealists, mycologists, pharmacologists, dendrochemists, bromeliasts, physiologists, pathologists, nutritionologists, zoologists, medico-climatologists, thermologists, fungicides, physiographers, meteorologists, bacteriologists, sylviculturists, biologists, pasteurists, riverologists, stromatologists, oecologists, geologists, or seed control. And last, but not least, his cottonologists. A total of 4,200 regular paid employees. This subdivision would be laughable were it not a most serious matter done with a view of increasing the office-holding class.

Never lose faith in human nature. This is a good place to be in, right here on this old earth. Lots of nice folks here, too. The trouble is that many of us get a notion that we are the only good people left in the world. But we are not. When we get to thinking that way, it is a sign we need to take a trip out into the world and see what is going on there.

Look into the schemes of all strange who come along offering you things a little money. Don't decide offhand. Sleep over it. Perhaps you may find you may miss a chance to get a splendid thing without paying for it. This is a likely. Real, genuine benefactors of the fellow men go about their business in altogether different way. Set that down for a fact!

Many farmers—and all farm editors receive occasional letters from city people asking an earnest, fair answer to a question something like this: "Do you think it likely that a town family could remove to a farm and make a living there without experience?" And hundreds of farmers and editors have found it a great problem how best to answer. "This is a responsibility to say 'No,' and a great responsibility to say 'Yes.'" Some city folks have made a success of such move. Who knows whether or not the questioner may not, with a little encouragement, be added to the fortunate list. And yet—how many, many town folk have met utter failure in just such a venture!

WASHINGTON LETTER

It is the President who is standing pat now, and he is standing as those who knew him knew he would stand on railway rate legislation. He had a long talk today with representative Townsend, co-author of the Eel-Townsend rate bill and after it was over Mr. Townsend said that the bill would be introduced at the coming session and would have the President's fullest approval Mr. Townsend in speaking of the bill to-day said, "We had but one idea in framing it, and that was to remedy the defeat in the present interstate Commerce legislation and to allow the commission to do what it was always intended they should do, namely make a decision and enforce it. The commission did actually exercise the authority it was supposed to have for several years till the matter was tested in court and the working of the act found to be defective. The rest of the bill as we introduced it was merely to furnish the machinery for expediting the work of the commission. The matter has been discussed a good deal since the bill was first introduced, but I have heard nothing said that changed my opinion of the measure. There are a good many people who say that the language used by the President in his last message to Congress was ambiguous and that he did not mean what he was popularly supposed to have meant. This is a mistake or the work of the people who wanted to prepare for letting the President down easy in case he saw fit to change his mind. But as a matter of fact he did not want to change his mind and he did not want to be let down easy. His language was plain enough in the first place, and if I am not much mistaken, when his message goes to Congress this time the first or one of the first things it will be a paragraph on rate legislation."

Mr. Townsend was asked if the testimony before the senate committee on interstate commerce had induced him to change his mind in any degree. He replied emphatically in the negative. "The railways," he said, "were asked to send witnesses to the hearing any of course they knew whom to send. They declared that it was unconstitutional to confer any such power on the railways as the bill proposed, but they were confronted by the records showing that the commission had exercised just such powers in the early years of its existence. Then there were a number of eminent lawyers called to show that the powers proposed by the bill were unconstitutional. But they called on the Attorney General and he assured them that the bill was constitutional. They also presented a lot of theories as to what the bill would do if it did become a law. But I am satisfied that not to present the testimony presented by the railroads could be called evasions. It was simply the opinion of interested parties."

The Secretary of Agriculture announced to the Cabinet meeting that he had decided on a scheme which would relieve the Department of Agriculture of considerable expense in connection with meat inspection and enable a larger force to be put at work. It was nothing less than a plan to make the packers pay for the hables used in the inspection and thus relieve the department of that part of the expenses. Heretofore the packers have stood of the expense of the inspection. The government have footed the entire bill. The cost of the labels alone amounts to from $65,000 and if this were saved to the department and a small fee charged for the services of the inspectors, it would be a great saving and would enable a much larger force of inspectors to be put to work. In this way not only would the inspectors for the smaller houses engaged in interstate traffic and who have heretofore complained that they were discriminated against in favor of the big houses of the trust.

The Navy Department has about decided that there shall be three cruisers to make up the little squadron that will convey and escort the President on his trip from New Orleans to Hampton Roads. There are four new cruisers in Admiral Brownson's squadron, but one of them the Maryland is now undergoing repairs and will not be available. The other three, however, the Pennsylvania, the Colorado and the West Virginia, are the pick of the whole cruiser squadron of the navy, and it has been decided that these three shall be assigned the duty of escorting the President. He will probably sail on the West Virginia, she being the flagship of the squadron, and the other two will accompany her on escort duty.

The American farmer is an exceedingly prosperous individual, according to railroad statistics, who have figured out that the grain traffic for this crop year will aggregate 1,500,000 car loads. If all this grain could be hauled in a single solid train of freight cars the train would be 11,931 miles long, exclusive of the locomotives that would be necessary to move it.

The queen of England is 60 years old, but they say she does not look more than 30. She is described by an American lady who saw her recently for the first time as "very sweet looking, rather tall, but awfully thin, with baby blue eyes, mahogany hair, beautifully coiffured. She has the saddest face I have ever seen and when she smiled she looked as though she wanted to cry instead."

There is a minister who appreciates the editor. At a recent editorial convention he offered the following toast: "To save an editor from starvation, take his paper and pay for it promptly. To save him from bankruptcy, advertise in his paper liberally. To save him from despair, send him every item of news of which you can get hold. To save him from profanity, write your correspondence plainly on one side of the sheet and send it in as early as possible. To save him from mistakes, bury him. CENTURY CLUB RESUME MEETINGS

First Meeting an Enjoyable Occasion and Many Present

The ladies of the New Century Club resumed their meetings for the coming season on Tuesday afternoon with a full attendance. The meeting was one of the most interesting during the existence of the club, and the members entered upon the new year's work with much enthusiasm. The new year book and program was greatly admired, and is a great improvement over the old sheet programs formerly used by the club.

The guests present were: Julia Lockwood, Blanche and Marie Lockwood, Mrs. George Lockwood, Mrs. Dural Gibbs, Mrs. Harry Griffith, Mrs. George Derickson, Hester Jones, Laura Willis, Clara Willis, Dora Price, Mrs. Harry Hardcastle, Mrs. Lewis McDowell, Mrs. H. B. McDowell, Louise McDowell, Mrs. J. P. Cochran, Jr., Mrs. Robert Cochran, Adelle, Lydia and Bessie Cochran, Mrs. Richard Cochran, Mrs. Chas. Derickson, Mrs. E. C. Green, Mrs. C. J. Freeman, Martha Heaton, Ethel Brady, Maria Nowland, Mae Holten, Mabel Derickson, Mrs. G. Lindsey Cochran, Mrs. W. R. Parker, Mrs. Edgar Clark, Mrs. J. Allen Johnson, Eliza Green, Mrs. J. G. Bragdon, Mrs. Edward Reynolds, Mrs. M. T. Bailey, of Middletown; Mrs. Boyd McCoy and Mrs. Howard Pool, of McDonough; Mrs. Henry Schroeder, of Lancaster, Pa., and Miss Blanche Wright, of Warwick.

The Odessa Club was the guest of the Middletown Club.

The guests present were: Mrs. Mailey, Mrs. West, Mrs. Joseph Brown, Mrs. Carrie Appleton, Mrs. W. R. Davis, Mrs. G. Coppage, Mrs. D. W. Corbit, Mrs. J. H. Enos, Mrs. George Davis, Mrs. F. B. Watkins and Miss Cornelia Townsend.

Misses Maria Nowland and Ethel Brady served tea and cakes to the guests. The next meeting will be held on October 17th, "Federation Day," and the following program will be rendered: Report of Federation, Miss Price. Talk by new Federation President, Mrs. Richard Cann. Reading, Miss Mary Shalleross. Magazine Reading, Miss Lockwood.

BY TELEPHONE

To the Progressive Farmers of Middletown, Warwick and Middle Neck.

The construction department of the Diamond State Telephone Company are engaged in stringing a new line from Middletown to Warwick. This line will connect the country homes of C. Malcolm Cochran, John P. Cochran, Jr., Edgar Clark, J. B. Donovan and E. E. Marsh with the Middletown exchange and give them the benefit of the telephone service of the Bell system in all parts of the United States. Dr. Jesse J. Wright of Warwick, will also be connected by this line which will be a great convenience to this distinguished medical practitioner.

There is no finer country on earth than that between Middletown and Warwick and the installing of the telephone adds another to the innumerable advantages this highly favored section possesses.

The Diamond State Telephone Company propose erecting a line from Middletown to Middle Neck. This is one of the most prolific sections of the Peninsula and its isolation will be obliterated by the telephone and make it one of the best places to live and make money on earth.

The following farm houses will probably be connected by the new line, W. D. Bradford, William Price, Charles Flintham, George Merritt and others. A telephone is not only a convenience but a necessity, and their introduction marks epoch in the progress of this community and puts Middle Neck in touch with the great world.

A NERVOUS WOMAN

Prompt Action Recovers Property—Phone Saves Home

On Sunday evening Mrs. Horace Hood, 303 Lenox St., New York, returned to her apartment and knew by external appearance that the house had been robbed. She rushed to the telephone, phoned her husband, who phoned Police Headquarters, which phoned the West One Hundred and Twenty-fifth street police station. Detective Sergeant Riley, Kear and Callan were there and hurried to Mrs. Hood's apartments. She had been robbed of $500 worth of silverware, cut glass and clothing. The officer caught Mulcaire and recovered Mrs. Hood's property.

ZENADIA, Mo., Oct. 12th. On Tuesday evening Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Lawrence, five miles South of this place left home to visit this city.

When one mile from home they were informed by a neighbor that an out-building on their property was on fire. He had been notified over the telephone by a servant who had been left in charge of the premises.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence at once returned to their home and succeeded in extinguishing the flames before they communicated with the house. This is the first instance in Prentice County within a short time, in which the use of the telephone has averted a serious catastrophe and the farmers of this and adjoining counties are having hundreds of "phones" installed in their homes.
